I've always been drawn to IT, and I discovered myself very young a passion for web development.
After two years of study in higher education and obtaining my Analyst-Developer diploma, I decided to take off.
I spent a little over two years at Snowcap, a small web agency, before coming to work for 8 years for the SIEP, which informs the public about studies and professions in Belgium.
I now work at Wikipower as Symfony developer.

PERSONAL PROJECTS

Leapt Froala Editor bundle
Open Source

The leapt/froala-editor-bundle is a bundle allowing to easily integrate the Froala WYSIWYG editor in a Symfony form, with shared configurations. I decided in 2019, at the time of the Hacktoberfest, to contribute substantially to this bundle then fork it in order to allow it to be able to run as soon as possible on the latest versions of Symfony.

Leapt Core bundle
Open Source

The leapt/core-bundle is again a Symfony bundle. It is a set of tools made available to facilitate the developer's tasks: RSS feeds, sitemap, pagination... It's a fork of my previous employer's bundle, Snowcap.

Jmsche.fr
Proprietary

The website you are browsing on. My goal is to regularly publish, as much as possible, blog articles that could help people looking for a solution to their problems mostly related to Symfony.

On my Screen & Les p'tites recettes de Mery
Proprietary

Two websites created for an acquaintance: On my Screen allows her to publish mostly movies or series reviews; Les p'tites recettes de Mery aims to be an inspiration source for cooking.
